Building Bridges:
A Roundtable Discussion with
Anthropology Faculty on Interdisciplinarity and Collaboration

Anthropology is an inherently interdisciplinary discipline. In this roundtable, we will be highlighting the work of Anthropology faculty at UofSC who have and are currently engaged with the university's many institutes and research centers. This roundtable will be of interest to undergraduate and graduate students interested in learning how anthropologists are contributing to academic and professional spaces situated outside of the department. Highlighted institutes/centers include: the Institute for Southern Studies (ISS), the Institute for African American Research (IAAR), the SC Institute for Archaeology and Anthropology (SCIAA), and the Walker Institute.
